RESEARCH

Fiscal Beliefs and the Effectiveness of Fiscal Consolidation

I identified fiscal belief heterogeneity using the FRBNY Survey of Consumer Expectations, finding fiscal pessimism among individuals with lower levels of education. I incorporate this finding into a DSGE model to study its implications for the effectiveness of fiscal consolidation.

Prior Selection for VAR Forecasts

I provide a systematic framework for enhancing prior selection in Bayesian VAR forecasts, overcoming limitations of the widely used method of Giannone et al. (2015). The paper proposes Relative Entropy Prior Sensitivity, which alleviates these limitations and improves point forecast accuracy. These improvements are attributed to the shape of the likelihood.
